

Collaborative Resources & Services

Strengthening the organic community through shared values and partnership.

At the Organic Farming Research Foundation (OFRF), we are guided by our mission of fostering the improvement and widespread adoption of organic farming systems. We are committed to cultivating organic research, education, and federal policies that bring more farmers and acreage into organic production. We offer a range of free and paid services to help allied organizations achieve success and build an equitable and thriving organic future.

For more info about our resources and services, scan the QR code or visit <https://ofrf.org/collaborative-resources-and-services/>

RESOURCES

OFRF's Resources Page offers a variety of free resources on all aspects of organic farming, from soil health to weed management, cover crops to water management.

SERVICES

Outreach & Messaging

Highlighting farmer and researcher success stories

Communications support

Contact Ashley Dulaney, Communications Director for information about these services: ashley@ofrf.org

Fundraising & Networking

Co-submission of grant applications
Co-fundraising campaigns
Co-submission of conference presentations

Contact Leah Lawson, Partnership & Development Director for information about these services: leah@ofrf.org

Research & Education

Research Amplification Services
Survey design support
Help farmers develop a research plan
Extension personnel connections
Organic education

Contact Thelma Velez, Research & Education Program Director for information about these services, thelma@ofrf.org

Advocacy & Awareness

Advocacy support for researchers and farmers
Discussions of USDA programming

Contact Gordon Merrick, Policy Program Director for information about these services: gordon@ofrf.org

CONTACT US
www.OFRF.org

For more info about our Collaborative Resources and Services, scan the QR code or visit <https://ofrf.org/equity-resources-and-services/>

